

Brigid Knight (State Life Membership)

Brigid Knight's distinguished service to IPSHA and to primary education in Tasmania reflects a career defined by collegiality, integrity, and an unwavering commitment to young learners and their leaders.

Commencing at St Mary's College in 2007, Brigid quickly became an engaged member of the Tasmanian IPSHA community. Mentored in 2009 by Cecily Macfarlane, she embraced the Association's spirit of professional generosity and collaboration—values she would come to embody for others. Her service to IPSHA extended across key leadership roles, including Deputy President, President of the Tasmanian Branch, and National Advisory Council Representative. In each capacity, Brigid was a thoughtful and articulate advocate for Tasmanian schools, ensuring the voice of our state was both heard and respected within the national dialogue.

As President, Brigid strengthened the Tasmanian Branch through her inclusive leadership style, fostering a culture of trust, professional sharing, and mutual support among Heads. She was deeply committed to the growth and wellbeing of fellow IPSHA leaders, offering wise counsel, encouragement, and practical support. Her collegial approach not only enhanced the professional capacity of individuals but reinforced the strength and cohesion of the Branch as a whole.

Through her work on the National Advisory Council, Brigid connected Tasmania to the broader educational landscape, contributing to national conversations on leadership, governance, and the evolving needs of primary education. Her Board-level engagement broadened opportunities for professional learning and collaboration, ensuring Tasmanian leaders remained informed, connected, and influential within the wider independent sector.

Alongside her IPSHA service, Brigid's leadership at St Mary's College—from Deputy in 2009 to Director of the Junior School—saw sustained growth in enrolment, culture, and reputation. Guided by faith and a commitment to excellence, she nurtured a vibrant learning environment where students were known, valued, and inspired to flourish.

Brigid's dedication to IPSHA, her school community, and the broader educational profession has left a lasting imprint on the Tasmanian Branch and the national Association. Her service exemplifies the very best of IPSHA leadership.
